

Anti-Asian misogyny is state power!

In response to the March 17 mass shooting in Atlanta, which claimed the lives of six Asian women profiled as sex workers and two others, President Biden denounced the "ugly poison" of racism. Other politicians followed suit with empty words about the rise in anti-Asian hate crimes, including BC Premier John Horgan. But racism is a function of capitalism, colonialism, and imperialism. Terrible moments of anti-Asian racism are not only problems of bad individuals – they are a direct expression of the anxieties of Anglo-American empire in response to China's economic rise.

Like in the battlefield of any war, women preeminently receive the violence of the US's anti-Asian misogynist war machine.

Upon taking office, Biden was quick to take a symbolic stand against anti-Chinese racism in order to present himself as a progressive alternative to his predecessor Trump. But while Biden won't say overtly racist things like "China virus," his condemnation of Trump is purely for show, because he's continuing all of Trump's "tough on China" diplomatic, trade, and military policies, which have helped create a pre-war climate of anti-Chinese racism.

British Columbia Premier John Horgan has also been quick to register his rhetorical opposition to individual instances of violent anti-Asian racism. But Horgan's NDP did not "stand against" anti-China hatred in 2020 when they campaigned against the BC Liberals on a platform of yellow peril tropes that blamed the housing crisis on "foreign investors" and the opioid poisoning crisis on "money laundering," both dog-whistles for anti-Chinese xenophobia. These election campaigns also synced up with misogynistic and racist editorials covering Canada's detention and

Anti-Asian misogyny is state power!

In response to the March 17 mass shooting in Atlanta, which claimed the lives of six Asian women profiled as sex workers and two others, President Biden denounced the "ugly poison" of racism. Other politicians followed suit with empty words about the rise in anti-Asian hate crimes, including BC Premier John Horgan. But racism is a function of capitalism, colonialism, and imperialism. Terrible moments of anti-Asian racism are not only problems of bad individuals – they are a direct expression of the anxieties of Anglo-American empire in response to China's economic rise.

Like in the battlefield of any war, women preeminently receive the violence of the US's anti-Asian misogynist war machine.

Upon taking office, Biden was quick to take a symbolic stand against anti-Chinese racism in order to present himself as a progressive alternative to his predecessor Trump. But while Biden won't say overtly racist things like "China virus," his condemnation of Trump is purely for show, because he's continuing all of Trump's "tough on China" diplomatic, trade, and military policies, which have helped create a pre-war climate of anti-Chinese racism.

British Columbia Premier John Horgan has also been quick to register his rhetorical opposition to individual instances of violent anti-Asian racism. But Horgan's NDP did not "stand against" anti-China hatred in 2020 when they campaigned against the BC Liberals on a platform of yellow peril tropes that blamed the housing crisis on "foreign investors" and the opioid poisoning crisis on "money laundering," both dog-whistles for anti-Chinese xenophobia. These election campaigns also synced up with misogynistic and racist editorials covering Canada's detention and extradition process against Huawei CEO Meng Wanzhou – charged by the US State Department with violating imperialist sanctions against Iran.

Like Biden, Horgan's "solution" to the problem of anti-Chinese racism in the context of a new Cold War-style conflict between the US-led West and China is legislation and prosecution against the violent individuals who carry the logic of imperialist campaigns against China to their conclusions in the terrain of everyday life. They oppose expressions of anti-Chinese racism that embarrass Canada and the United States, which despite being incredibly violent countries, market themselves as "free" and "democratic," but have nothing to say about the root cause anti-Chinese racism: Western imperialism.

In Canada and the States, hate crimes and anti-Asian assaults disproportionately target women. Like in the battlefield of any war, women preeminently receive the violence of the US's anti-Asian misogynist war machine. When white men like Robert Aaron Long commit violence against Asian women, they personify the imperial interests and foundations of Canada and the United States.

There can be no end to violence against migrant women that isn't also the end of the United States, which is why anti-racism drained of any anti-imperialist politics is simply multicultural reformism: the call for the state to mobilize the hard power of cops, laws, and prisons in order to criminalize a narrow definition of racist violence while also championing greater "diversity" amongst the politicians who helm a genocidal, settler-colonial, imperial nation-state.

Today we hold our moment of silence for women whom our enemies stole from our communities, and in whose memories we will continue to struggle: Soon Chung Park, Suncha Kim, Yong Yue, Xiaojie Tan, Daoyou Feng, and Hyun-Jung Kim.

---

Red Braid Alliance for Decolonial Socialism
redbraid.org

extradition process against Huawei CEO Meng Wanzhou – charged by the US State Department with violating imperialist sanctions against Iran.

Like Biden, Horgan's "solution" to the problem of anti-Chinese racism in the context of a new Cold War-style conflict between the US-led West and China is legislation and prosecution against the violent individuals who carry the logic of imperialist campaigns against China to their conclusions in the terrain of everyday life. They oppose expressions of anti-Chinese racism that embarrass Canada and the United States, which despite being incredibly violent countries, market themselves as "free" and "democratic," but have nothing to say about the root cause anti-Chinese racism: Western imperialism.

In Canada and the States, hate crimes and anti-Asian assaults disproportionately target women. Like in the battlefield of any war, women preeminently receive the violence of the US's anti-Asian misogynist war machine. When white men like Robert Aaron Long commit violence against Asian women, they personify the imperial interests and foundations of Canada and the United States.

There can be no end to violence against migrant women that isn't also the end of the United States, which is why anti-racism drained of any anti-imperialist politics is simply multicultural reformism: the call for the state to mobilize the hard power of cops, laws, and prisons in order to criminalize a narrow definition of racist violence while also championing greater "diversity" amongst the politicians who helm a genocidal, settler-colonial, imperial nation-state.

Today we hold our moment of silence for women whom our enemies stole from our communities, and in whose memories we will continue to struggle: Soon Chung Park, Suncha Kim, Yong Yue, Xiaojie Tan, Daoyou Feng, and Hyun-Jung Kim.

---

Red Braid Alliance for Decolonial Socialism
redbraid.org